THURSDAY, JANUARY 22, 1885

THE BRAZILIAN DIFFICULTY.

Our readers have seen the letter of a countryman resident at Rio Janeiro, touching the conduct of Mr. Christie, wherein we are led to believe that English diplomacy was rather hasty, and that Brazil succumbed not to justice but to armed aggression. Our correspondent states that the British naval officers got drunk and attacked the guards when the demand arising out of the plunder of "the prince of Wales" was unjust.

We do not indorse the views of contributors; neither would we impugn his veracity. Their plea, however, obliges us to refer to the official documents exchanged, from which we must conclude that the Brazilian Government resisted well-founded claims and if our British agents acted improperly they had, at least, more reason on their side.

Taking the uncontradicted despatches of Mr. Christie, we find that the four officers had only drunk two bottles of wine between them. They were running to entertain the omnibus, when the sentinel, like our friends at the Capitania del Puerto, attacked them with a bayonet, for presuming to go so fast. They were confined in a filthy dungeon and their letters to the Consul and Admiral destroyed. They were ignominiously marched into Rio Janeiro, although they offered to pay for a conveyance and the dignity of British officers was wantonly insulted by semi-barbarous policeagents. For this, the English Government was fully entitled to require the dismissal of the Chief of Police, which Don Pedro treated as a bullying insult.

The wreck of the Prince of Wales was even a more serious matter, for the crew were murdered and the cargo robbed, without any effort of the authorities, to prevent, or punish, such enormities: some of the pillage was even found in the Alcade's house. The demand for compensation was peremptorily rejected, and nothing was left for Mr. Christie but to waive the point, or take active measures. We are inclined to look jealously on all armed intervention, when the first naval power of the Globe imposes its will on a diminutive State, and think England can reap little glory by capturing schooners in the bay of Rio; but a little reflection will convince our indignant colleagues that the British Lion had received wanton indignities before standing on the offensive with our Brazilian neighbours.

NEW LAND LAW.

The recent law or regulation whereby Government lands were doubled in value, has, without assuring any benefit to the country, given umbrage to all. Many people may not be aware of the correct injury which it is now causing this country. But certainly cases having come under our ledge, we feel bound to give the publicity, in order that people may judge of the qualifications or capabilities of our provincial executive. Personally, of course we have nothing to say against Messrs. Saavedra, Domingues and Acosta; but as public men we have the incapacity to impeach them, and charge them with driving men of capital out of the country which they have been appointed to govern.

In proof of this assertion, we may say that already three properties have left this province, because land in Entre Rios; several have gone to the Banda Oriental, and a number of Irishmen, who have stuck, but no land of their own, are about removing to the south of the Uruguay. Neither is this exodus confined to foreigners: native estancieros talk of emigrating also.

To demonstrate more clearly, however, the iniquity of the present law, we beg our readers attention to a few facts:

1st. In 1857 a law was passed authorizing the sale of 100 leagues of Government land, at the former prices. Up to this hour, this land has not been sold.

2nd. According to the new law, a league of Government land in the neighbourhood of the Villa Lujan, Mercedes, or San Antonio de Areco, is only worth double that of land in the Partido Tandil or Bahia Blanca, when, intrinsically speaking, it should command ten times the price.

Painful as it is for us to be obliged to call public attention to such questionable management, we feel it our incumbent duty, in order that, if possible, the law may be modified or repealed.

If there existed any great demand for Government lands, and the law assisted in realizing the Minister, to purchase, we could understand the idea of doubling the price; but when it is proved that the Government has been unable, in six years, to realize a hundred leagues of land, we leave our readers to judge of the necessity of such a step.

If the object of the Government is to keep the public property lying waste, and to impede the settling of the country, then indeed, we can understand the meaning of the law in question. But we apprehend that the people of Buenos Ayres have more sense than to tolerate suicidal measures, which can only be approved of by the Governors of Entre Rios and Uruguay.

We demand, therefore, that the Government give the public some explanation in the matter, and repeal or modify the law in question, before lands in Entre Rios and the Banda Oriental become more valuable than our own.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The accident on the Northern Railway had very nearly proved fatal. Up to Tuesday evening the engine and cars had not been got on the track. We consider that it is most unpardonable negligence to leave the road as it is, without any fence to prevent cattle from straying on the line. A good wire fence ought to be immediately put up, as without this there is not the slightest guarantee against a repetition of the accident.

Another murder has occurred in the Guardia del Monte. The victim, a pasteero of Mr McClymont's—a quiet, inoffensive man, and highly respected in his business and as yet the assassin has not been found. We thank the Sigle for giving publicity to the murder as it is a most scandalous thing that murder should be so lushing. Mr. Alsina will do well to adopt some stringent measure in respect to the trial of person charged with murder. The general impression amongst the gauchos in the camp is, that such crimes are punished by making the murderer a soldier of the line.

We hear the most terrible new from the camp, respecting the loss of sheep in the thistles: in some parts, whole flocks have vanished. No owners having searched in vain for them. A native estanciero, while driving 4000 sheep towards Arrecifes, lost 2500; in so only found a few of them in subsequent flocks. Where the sheep are gone is to the question. Very persons think that when the thistle beds fall, strange sheep will be found every where.

The commission sent out in all wrong dilapidated manner closets exist in public places, has elicited a chorus of censure from our Deputies. If ever any man was entitled to neglect of duty, certainly the officer whose business was to look to these concerns, should suffer. We don't know if the illustrious Mr Cazon is the proper person to attend to such things. We earnestly trust that the party through whose negligence the unfortunate man lost his life, last Sunday, will be brought to justice. If it was Mr Cazon's duty to look to these places, then we demand that he be arraigned. Something must be done. The subscription for the poor family may relieve their wants, and, in some manner, compensate them for their loss; but the public justice and public safety must also be regarded, and it is to be hoped the Fiscal will have the courage to have the guilty party tried for such gross neglect.

One of the novelties of the day is the proposed measure for raising the salaries of the Provincial Government employees. We put in a caveat against any such proposal, and demand, on the contrary, that the salaries be reduced; first, because these gentlemen have now less to do than formerly, and next, because they don't deserve any rise in their salaries. The Governor is well enough paid —that every one admits; and as for Messrs. Saavedra, Domingues, Acosta and Domingues, if they were both sent out to the frontier for a short time, to inspect the lands which they have the audacity to ask $2000,00 a league for, they would soon pay their expenses there and back, they would shekaddle from Calle Moreno, without waiting to collect their salaries.

The man for Barracas is Mr John Marshall: he is at present building three iron store-houses for river traffic, and says that if things go on well, he will make another Clyde of the Riachuelo.

Our remarks the other day, respecting the Finance Minister, Señor Pacheco, and the River Plate Bank, appears were based upon erroneous informations. Although we have many complaints against the Minister for taxes, &c., we are happy to say that his kindness towards the poor of the banks in question has been uniform and his efforts untiring to smooth away difficulties.

As regards Dr Tornero's complaint against our Consul, we await Mr Brizk's reply as to important a matter, which involves a general principle. We cannot, however, be censured for giving publicity to the letter in question, as Mr. Parish is dead and there was nothing private or personal in the communication.

MONTEVIDEO.

A strange accident occurred on Saturday, causing the death of a carter named Espinel: the poor fellow was driving a bullock waggon, which got on the foot-path, and injured the gable of a house. A bystander jokingly remarked that he would be unable to pay the damages, which had such an effect upon his spirits that he fell down and died. Medical assistance came, but too late.

A fugitive, named Juan Purfo, who had eloped from Catamarca, with 4000 silver dollars, was captured, en route for Europe, with 225 oz. of the booty. A small sum, with cargo of the Uncle Toby, was wrecked off the Marsella, the crew (2) escaping.

The town of Mercedes has been thrown into a ferment by an animated correspondence between Signor Wonner, consular agent for Italy, and Sr. Braga, Chief of Police. It seems a ball was given by the Spanish officers, on the 31st ult., from which the representative of the "gentlemen" was excluded, seeing that Spain has not yet recognised the kingdom of Italy. Sr Braga, how ever, denies any intention of insult, and refers Signor Wonner to the committee, for any satisfaction he may require. The parish priest of Mercedes has abandoned his editorial capacity in the Imparcial Italiano.

The late elections at Mercedes have been annulled by the Oriental Government, on account of the great disorders attending same.

In the city of Montevideo no less than 320 houses of business were opened during the past year.

The Spanish officers were received in Salto with great honors: they collected a portion of loaves, reptiles, stones, and plants and visited the great Salto del Uruguay. The Commercial bank of Salto is doing a splendid business, interest 1 per cent monthly: trade very brisk. A new market is to be constructed, two-thirds of the cost being already contributed: some men of public spirit have subscribed all the lime, timber and bricks necessary, and the Messrs Conceicao have given a donation of the site fixed on. D Ventura Rodriguez has forwarded a demand, for damages, to Pres. Santos, having been falsely imprisoned for 2 months, in Paysandu.

The Reforma tells us that 600 persons have fallen victims, in Tucuman, to the small-pox. A new mine at San Juan, called the "Richard," in honor of our distinguished townsman, yields 600 marks to the cajon.

TO SHEEP BREEDERS.

IMPERIAL FLOCKS OF RAMBOUILLET.

At Rambouillet the actual state of the flock has been reached by very different means. Thanks to abundant and substantial food, to a well understood sanitary system, and to wise and judicious selection of the best animals for each sex for reproduction, taken always from the same flock, and bred with and in the original nuances of Rambouillet have been completely modified; their weights have been nearly doubled; their forms which were angular became gracefully more round and massive, the bones which were thick are thinner; the fleece is more abundant, more compact and thick (tasse), and has considerably increased in weight. In really it is a new and perfectly pure species of the merino race, originated in the Establishment of Rambouillet, and its fundamental characteristic is that it gives, at the same time, a heavy fleece and much meat. This improvement of the merino race suit s perfectly the wants of the breeder everywhere when the production of wool is the chief object. As merinoes, the animals of Rambouillet are certainly the largest and best built in existence. It is by crossing them with the coarse sorts of the country that our French farmers have been able to obtain these large "bastards," which give so much meat and much wool of medium quality.

The establishment of Rambouillet has bred more than eight thousand animals, whose blood has been mixed with the different native races, and has improved their wool. By this fact alone France has been freed from the annual tribute of thirty-five millions which she previously paid to Spain. It still continues to exercise its beneficial influence not only throughout our own land, but to the remotest where breeding of sheep is attended to. In Europe alone I can mention Russia, Poland, Italy and the different parts of Germany, which seek Rambouillet animals to impart their character to their smaller breeds, the manifest tendency being to obtain from the merino race in its full purity, large progenitors well covered with wool, and not looking for extra fineness: the great object at present is to improve flocks and increase at the same time their pecuniary revenue.

As to fleeces, wool may be grown almost in any way desired; the chief aim ought, however, always to be directed towards obtaining a good, strong, elastic wool, with a staple rather square and compact (tassé) than long. I would undertake to obtain in time, from thorough pure Saxon merinos descendants which shall have the forms, size, and wool of Rambouillet merinoes to small extra fine animals; the only secret being to select the proper progenitors, male and female, which possess the desired conditions.

The formation of the progeny is due to the influence of two agencies emanating from both the ram and the ewe; one of them is the force of heredity, the other the force tenacity (atavisme). The first is due to the influence of the immediate progenitors, that is, it is individual; the latter is that of the whole race, the collective influence of the ancestors of both parents; it is the influence of the whole past of their mutual races. This tenacity (atavisme) is not to be mistaken with what you call the coup en arrière," or the casual and quite unexpected likeness of a young animal to one of his ancestors. It may be considered as the sum total of all the peculiarities and characteristics inherent in the different ancestors of both progenitors. These two agencies, although perfectly distinct from each other, always amalgamate and operate together in the act of reproduction, and consequently experience teaches that in selecting a ram it is not his own individual qualities alone, for these are not his merit, but are due particularly to the superiority of his ancestors, and however fine and beautiful he himself may be, if his race had been crossed, he will frequently produce a very inferior progeny. Therefore, and ordinary animal, from an old and constant race, ought to be preferred to a very fine subject to crossed one; as the first by force of tenacity (atavisme), corrects imperfections, while the latter transmits those of his ancestors.

A race becomes constant and possesses a great force of transmission when the progeny resembles more and more its ancestors; it is then that the force of heredity becomes absolute, and in that of tenacity; and it is in this condition that after a long lapse of time with skilful management, that fixed and constant races are formed.

I close concluding, I may add, that the flock of Rambouillet, since its foundation, has been the successive property of the sovereigns and governments which have ruled over France. The monarchs have always derived great attention to the establishment Louis XVI., had a magnificent farm buildings erected in the interior of the Great Park; Napoleon I. had further and very extensive improvements executed, while Louis Philippe after the Revolution, secured by an ordinance of his privy council, the preservation of the flock as the original type of the finest merino race, intended as such to add another trophy to the agricultural achievements of France. Napoleon III. has had another large structure added to the establishment, and continues to encourage by his high protection and solicitude, the imperial farms of Rambouillet.

(Signed) BARON DAUBIER.

The Director of the Imperial Flocks of Rambouillet.

KILLING, NO MURDER.

To the Editors.

Sir:—

Permit me to say a few words on the following subject, viz:—

A British subject's life taken by another, on the camp of the estancia de Piedra Chata, Banda Oriental.

I have since heard that deceased had made a statement, before he died, that the party that killed him was not to blame, as he (the Deceased) had previously taken a knife to him.

Now I do not mean to contradict the above statement, but knowing, from personal experience, how very rowdy those "quasi"—gentlemen on the said camps of Piedra Chata are with their Revolvers, it being the cry with them "shoot him", on any trifling provocation—having myself been threatened with Revolvers, on two occasions: the first time, they fearing that I would complain of them to the authorities, sent a lying statement to the colonia, alleging that I had attacked their house, (they being four in revolvers, and two peons), I, alone and unarmed, and by every impossible it was for me to perform such unheard of feats as to "frighten six men", I was nevertheless taken to the colonia as a prisoner. Therefore I believe there are parties in that neighbourhood, capable of fabricating statements.

Now, Mr. Editor, I do not say this from any animosity to the one that took the other's life—never, as I live, having seen him—but as the proverb says: "Evil communications, &c", it therefore behoves the authorities to sift the matter well, and the the British Agents look into the case and not let British subjects kill one another on the slightest provocation, because one man is a little higher circle than the other, get off with impunity; and I hope your valuable and widely circulated paper will advocate the same.

LOCAL EVENTS.

TWO ITALIANS—Have come to this city with a plunder of 737 pesos, which was taken from an over-confident Oriental estanciero in Montevideo.

Although there is no Extradition treaty yet the Chief of Police sh uld use a little of that discretionary power, which he misapplies so often, to their capture.

ROBBERY—A gentleman on horseback visiting a few nights ago one of our Northern suburbs was knocked down by a robber and despoiled of his watch and money.

The robber threw down and dropped a paper during the proceedings which will serve as a clue to his identity.

LUNACY—Besides a case we mentioned yesterday, we hear of two men and a woman who have taken leave of their senses last week.

FISCAL—or attorney General, Dr. Francisco Bustos Rivera is now out having been appointed to be member of the supreme tribunal of justice.

In drawing up his resignation he declined the Governorship the hard work attached to this post and the inconvenient way in which its duties are distributed.

DESERTERS—Seven from station another reason, which is very evident to any one, "poor pay", which is a bane of this country. We believe Governor Saavedra concurs; good officials, good work, and good pay.

THE LAST—Of this iquity we trust we are about to offer a premium for the best mode of laying the dust, without water. Minuti is getting quite projecti

LOTTERY TICKETS—Over 1200 strong, able-bodied young men and boys are occupied in this business daily.

COTTON—An English gentleman has a splendid field of cotton in the immediate vicinity of town. The plant is not in a state of the ripe to be and trust, will amply repay him for his trouble. Over 16 acres are under cotton at this charge.

CRUEL MISTAKE—The Austrian sailor who murdered the captain, his wife, and chief mate of the above vessel, on his return to Montevideo, has been committed for trial, in England. The depositions had not arrived from Rio Janeiro, but were expected by next packet.

SELTZER WATERS. At Messrs Torres and Hutton's apothecary store in the Calle Defensa, there is now on sale in this hot weather, this water is a "wine qua non" we advise our friends to try it as it is the best we have ever drank.

FAREWELL. Mr. Hudson has given up the editorship of the "Nacional." We wish him the full enjoyment of private life, and hope his successor will take a different view of the actual state of affairs.

PETROLEUM. It is surprising that some Kerosene speculators do not commence to work the oil-springs of Rioja which promise as good a yield as those of Pensylvania.

S. ANDAL. The body of poor Jordan, who perished in the mist, owing to municipal neglect, is still buried in the odious depths where it will probably remain, for York policy.

COAL MURDER, Mr. McClymont's cocinero has been assassinated in the partido of Guardia Monte already so notorious. We have no account of any measures taken to arrest the criminal.

SR. TIZARRO, It was incorrect that the body of this gentleman had been found. No trace is forthcoming, and the unhappy family believe he was murdered and the remains thrown into some arroyo.

COWS. Those animals are revenging for Sor Sarmiento's attack on horses at the inauguration of the San Fernando line. Two of them succeeded in upsetting the train on Saturday, but no lives were lost. 8 policemen have been sent to keep off the horned conspirators.

THE PRESIDENT of the Faculty of Medicine has issued circulars requesting the donation of books to form a library for the use of that society. Don't he wish he may get them?

COLONEL SANDES has been weighed for the fifty second time at Rauchie at San Luis stabbed him to the depth of three inches; the latest news, although no details are known, states that the Colonel as usual was getting on very well.

ELECTIONS. The Tribuna states that the National Government have resolved to abstain entirely from leaning the moral or material influence to any of the list of candidates for the elections of March, for Gov. of Buenos Ayres.

HORSE. To-night commences the killing dogs by the police by means of strichnine.

Any justice who may have animals of some value should take the precaution of locking them up.

RACES. The Argentine a sociation announce that races will take place on Sunday the 8th and Sunday the 12th April.

BUILDINGS. During the last year 1868, 753 new buildings have been constructed and 602 have undergone important repairs.

The first may be estimated at 150,000$ each, which is an average estimate: if we include the following houses Sr. Atucha, corner of Cangallo and Reconquista, Sr. Andrade, corner of Rivadavia and Maipú, do do corner of Corrientes and Aleyo, Mr. Lumb next door to the Bolsa, cost in addition millions, Say 85 millions.

The repairs (602) may be estimated at 40,000 each coy 24 millions which rank as a grand total of 140 millions or nearly one million sterling and shows a good recession to the wealth of the country in real state.

The number of buildings belong to the capital, and the property tax on Contribucion, Directa accruing to the Government from it, amounts to 527,000 per annum.

The number of new buildings in 1869 shows no increase of 1868 but of 1871, we believe a still more increased rate will take place in 1863

FOREIGN ISCELLANEA.

It is Lord Robert Montagu who has perpetrated a "bull" at last. His sister-in-law being Miss Elizabeth Wade, a pretty thousand who had attracted more eyes than his in the ranks of the Food of Wealth in our grove. Before his lordship took "the fatal step" he dined and sat all his servants, and on his butler remarking that he had lived with him for fourteen years and had never been found fault with, Lord Robert replied that that was about the longest time that he had ever known any one keep a secret. "Then, my lord," said the butler, "I hope you will make it necessary to have everybody now about him—"Patriot."

—Constantinople has been visited by a terrible conflagration. It took place on Oct. 29, in the quarter of Tatabasch Rem and was only put out after it had been raging for eight hours. The Levant "Herald" says:

"The municipal and other equipments called fire engines—speedily betrayed from all quarters of the capital, but their feeble jets of water seemed rather to feed than to check the blazing torrent, as it rolled on with undiminished energy through the house to house, and street for street, till the whole quarter seemed engulphed in its raging billows of fire. Their Highnesses the Grand Vizier, Captain "Pasha" and "Seraskier", were on the spot soon after the conflagration had assumed unusual proportions, but in spite of all the energy their voices and example could inspire in the minds of the firemen and soldiers, the devouring storm swept on, till the usual remedy of pulling down houses and so stopping its progress at length checked its further course. This, however, was not achieved; we regret to say that five fatal casualties also occurred, as well as a boy having fallen victims to the flames. The calamity, however, will at least have done one public good—in having cleared a densely populated neighborhood and given the authorities an opportunity of compelling the erection of houses more worthy of a city every known law of sanitary economy.
